Why Did Hertz Charge Me $200?

Hertz typically places a security deposit or credit card authorization on your account when you rent a vehicle 🤳⇠⟦+1⟧⇢ ⊹ 877 6*84 * 43~54. This deposit is often around 🤳⇠⟦+1⟧⇢ ⊹ 877 6*84 * 43~54 $200, but the exact amount can vary depending on:

- Location of pickup
- Payment method (credit vs. debit card)
- Type of vehicle rented
- Length of rental
- Additional services selected

This $200 is not an extra fee—it's a temporary hold to cover potential additional charges such as:

- Fuel differences
- Tolls
- Extra mileage

- Cleaning fees
- Damage
- Late returns

Once the vehicle is returned in good condition, the hold is released.

How Long Does Hertz Take to Release the $200 Hold?

Typically:

- Credit card holds are released within 3–7 business days
- Debit card holds may take up to 10 business days depending on your bank

Delays are usually caused by bank processing times, not Hertz itself.

Will the $200 Charge From Hertz Show as "Pending"?

Yes. Most of the time, the deposit appears as a pending authorization, not a completed charge 🤳⇠⟦+1⟧⇢ ⊹ 877 6*84 * 43~54. If it turns into a posted charge and remains more than 10 days after your return, you should contact customer support 🤳⇠⟦+1⟧⇢ ⊹ 877 6*84 * 43~54.

1. Outstanding Balances

If fuel or mileage fees were added, the deposit may be used to cover them 🤳⇠⟦+1⟧⇢ ⊹ 877 6*84 * 43~54.

2. Toll Charges

Toll processing can take several days 🤳⇠[[+1]]⇢ ⊹ 877 6*84 * 43~54.

4. Bank Delays

Even after Hertz releases the funds, some banks take additional time to process the reversal 🤳⇠[[+1]]⇢ ⊹ 877 6*84 * 43~54.
