

How does boarding work for Breeze?

Breeze Airways uses a zone-based boarding system, starting with Pre-Boarding (special needs, families, military), then BreezeBy Boarding (priority add-on/Nicer Bundle), followed by Priority Boarding (Zone 1 for Nicer Bundles/Ascent seats/cardholders) and General Boarding (Zone 2: Nice Bundle/carry-ons; Zone 3: no carry-ons/back rows), calling zones sequentially from the gate until everyone boards, with your zone found on your boarding pass.

Boarding a Breeze Airways flight is a structured and organized process designed to ensure efficiency, safety, and a smooth passenger experience. Breeze Airways uses a boarding group system that allows passengers to board in stages, reducing congestion and helping travelers settle into their seats comfortably.

Boarding Groups and Zones

Breeze Airways assigns passengers to specific boarding groups based on ticket type, check-in time, and any pre-purchased priority boarding options. Typically, passengers who check in early or purchase “Breeze Plus” or priority boarding options are assigned to the first boarding groups. Standard boarding passengers are grouped according to the time of check-in or seat location.

Boarding groups are usually displayed on your boarding pass, whether digital or printed. Passengers are called to board according to these groups, ensuring an orderly flow onto the aircraft. Early boarding groups also allow families with young children, travelers with special needs, and those requiring extra assistance to board first.

Pre-Boarding and Assistance

Breeze Airways offers pre-boarding for passengers needing special assistance. This includes travelers with mobility challenges, elderly passengers, and those traveling with infants or unaccompanied minors. Airline staff provide guidance and help ensure these passengers board safely and comfortably.

Boarding Process at the Gate

Frontier staff will scan your boarding pass to confirm your seat assignment and verify your identity.
